

An Atlas of the Peninsular War, 1808–1814

by Ian Robertson • Cartography by Martin Brown

This is the first comprehensive modern atlas of the Peninsular War, the series of campaigns in which almost all the fighting on land took place between Napoleonic France and British forces commanded by Sir Arthur Wellesley (later Duke of Wellington). Here a distinguished military historian examines and explains the sequence of battles and the course of that long war through expertly-drawn cartography in colour.

A general introduction, together with a historical summary setting the campaigns in context, is followed by 77 detailed maps and plans, each with a complementary text. The physical features of the terrain, with due emphasis on contour, together with the movements and deployment of troops, are portrayed in an animated visual form.

The great battles of Vimeiro, Talavera, Busaco, Albuera, Salamanca, Vitoria and the Pyrenees are all graphically described, together with the main sieges and many minor combats; while due importance is given to the several hard-fought actions of the concluding campaign, ending in the blood-bath at Toulouse.

The Atlas also contains a chronology, glossary and selective bibliography, making it an indispensable companion to both serious students and amateurs interested in the Napoleonic wars, during the current bicentennial commemoration and beyond.

IAN ROBERTSON is the author of Wellington at War in the Peninsula, Wellington Invades France: the Final Phase of the Peninsular War, and A Commanding Presence. Wellington in the Peninsula: Logistics · Strategy · Survival.
